When filmmaker Sharon Shattuck was in the awkward throes of adolescence, her father, Michael, revealed that he identified as a woman, and his new transgender identity was named Trisha. Trisha's revelation shook the family to its core but, through it all, she has remained married to Sharon's heterosexual mother. On the cusp of her own wedding, Sharon turns the camera on her parents to explore their deeply personal story about the intricate complexities of love, marriage and gender identity.

OUT TO WIN

DIR Malcolm Ingram
USA, CANADA, 2015, 99 MINUTES

The world of professional sports has long been dogged by a reputation of homophobia, steeped in the fear that openly gay players provide a potential "distraction" to the other teammates. OUT TO WIN looks at the challenges faced by athletes who have come out publicly within a sometimes hostile environment. Featuring interviews with trailblazers such as Billie Jean King, Billy Bean and Martina Navratilova, this eye-opening film serves as an important conversation starter.

Times are changing.

DIRS Emily Lobsenz, Ann Husaini
